

COPPIT THE CLOWN AND THE CIRCUS OF DOOM

A childlike story for those who like to sleep

Hello... today I'll be telling you the heart-breaking story of a world that allowed corrupt bankers, out-of-control politicians, evil tech giants and genocidal drug companies to exploit and decimate its population under the guise of a global pandemic.

When you are ready, I will begin.

Once upon a time on a planet not far from our own there lived people who mostly worked hard and enjoyed life.

As time went by, they invented things like electricity, cars and aeroplanes, which made their lives better still.

And just like us they came up with computers, mobile communication and the internet and found that, in the blink of an eye, they could send information all over the world.

It seemed idyllic and no-one thought for one minute that something awful was about to befall them. But it was!

Globalist conspirators armed with God-like delusions, dark money and immense power over much of the world decided it was time to complete the job.

One of them had an enormous technology corporation that prospered mightily. He was hugely rich, unhinged and extremely greedy. Some called him the Gates of Hell.

Another was the shadowy Vladwab who for years had been brainwashing gullible young people for their future role as a puppet leader.

They joined forces with a wicked scientist named Mengowci and together they conspired to use population reduction and absolute control of the world to secure unimaginable wealth and power. They also planned to get rid of those they called the “Useless Creatures”.

Drug companies too were super-rich. They had convinced governments around the world they had cures for many diseases, charging vast sums of money in the process.

Bankers were also involved because, unbeknown to many, they privately owned and controlled most of the world’s national banks. They’d been stealing from people’s savings and pension funds for years and pretty soon the money would be running out.

The objective of these unelected globalists would be to seize control of the world, cut population size by up to nine-tenths and, with the help of tech implants, ensure those that remain become docile and obedient slaves. They called it Operation Reboot!

The enslavement agenda was ingenious. They would announce the arrival of a dangerous new virus called Coppit-99. Mengowchi would persuade governments everywhere that millions of lives were at risk and only by paying him a huge amount of money for a vaccine could they be saved.

Next, they would create a dangerous new drug, calling it a vaccine so people would feel safe taking it. In fact, it would be a bio weapon for sending spiked proteins and other dangerous material into the body of its victims, often with fatal results.

The so-called vaccine would be far more dangerous than the virus. It would have a short lifespan to justify a never ending need for booster shots... and of course, never-ending deaths and profits.

The drug companies would instruct governments that people had to wear masks, socially distance, wash hands constantly, and stay at home for long periods of time. None of this pantomime would offer protection against a virus. It's real purpose would be to create and maintain an Orwellian state of obedience and fear.

The elderly would be most at risk from both virus and job and the resulting deaths would reduce pension pay outs and help the Conspirators hide the fact they had stolen everyone's money.

The masses would be instructed to use a digital vaccination card in order to help governments control the pandemic. In fact, its real purpose would be to monitor, regulate and control everything they do, preparing those who survived for their future life as a slave.

The Conspirators would control the planet and, with money running out, they needed to own the entire resources of the world and its population. People would be medically controlled, implant enhanced and live in a rented home. They'd have a small allowance and privileges that give them a day-to-day life... so long as they obeyed the rules.

They would be told... "You will own nothing and you will be happy". In our world this would be called communism

And so, with the Coppit-99 virus said to be circling the world, Operation Reboot began.

The media and medical worlds had already been “bought” by the Conspirators. Mainstream news was ordered to report that Coppit-99 was killing people in their hundreds of thousands, that job refusers were a danger to everyone, and vaccination was the only solution.

In fact, official figures later showed that for the year the mainstream media was reporting huge numbers of Coppit-99 victims, the total for all-cause deaths was in fact lower than the year before.

Clearly the virus was no more dangerous than our flu so the Conspirators had to move fast. They came up with a fake test that appeared to show millions around the world being infected... and it worked.

Soon countries were clamouring to get their hands on the so-called vaccines, some signing ridiculously one-sided contracts with drug companies, handing over sovereign assets and taking full responsibility for the deaths and injuries to come.

Meanwhile, most people just went along with the propaganda, and never for one moment thought they were being deceived. They expected governments and media to be telling the truth and looking after their best interests. In fact they were sleepwalking into a totalitarian nightmare.

They even celebrated when the arrival of Coppit vaccines was announced, not realising the timing was impossible and that much of the dirty work had taken place years earlier.

And so, as predicted, the money tree began to produce great riches for the drug industry as millions around the world queued to receive jab after jab. “Important” people on camera were given harmless saline while the masses had the real thing.

The Coppit-99 jab had been tested on animals and all of those had died. But that didn't stop our genocidal Conspirators injecting pregnant and breast-feeding women. Soon word got out that the rate of miscarriage had risen from 10 to 80 per cent and independent scientists were warning that surviving children were likely to be infertile.

Over a one-year period in a country called Oukay, some 200,000 people died from the jab and 1.5 million were injured, often severely. At the same time more than 1000 athletes collapsed and/or died and pilots passed out at the controls. When jab deaths occurred, they were repeatedly called unexpected so as not to raise suspicion or alarm.

As instructed, the popular media continued to ignore all that was happening.

For the evil plan to work the Cabal needed the majority of people to be continually jabbed and those who refused were called anti-vaxxers who were betraying their country. This split families and friends alike, exactly as planned.

Divide and conquer was the name of the game and those who defied Operation Reboot faced losing access to shops and entertainment, having their car and driving license taken away, their bank account emptied, home seized, and even facing prison.

In the beginning, most people were so frightened by the pandemic propaganda on mainstream news, they believed everything they were told. Eventually, however, doubts began to emerge.

Word got out that the weaponised injection was destroying people's T cells. They were losing their immune system and developing AIDS and within a few months there was a big rise in heart attacks, strokes, blood clots and cancers. Meanwhile, hospital workers were privately reporting an avalanche of strange and unusual diseases among the jabbed.

It looked like mass murder on a world scale and not unlike how the Nazis behaved on our own planet in World War II. Official figures showed, despite government denials, the vast majority of hospitalised Coppit-99 patients were fully jabbed and more likely to die than the unvaccinated.

Even more shocking, some doctors and nurses were seen deliberately ending the life of elderly patients, in return for bonus payments. Others who could see what was happening were threatened, sacked or made to resign after speaking out or refusing the jabs.

At last, the public began to take notice. Around the world, opposition was growing, resistance organised, and demonstrations of up to a million people were taking place.

The Conspirators responded with a campaign of social unrest, for instance deliberately orchestrating gender confusion among young people and acrimony between pro and anti abortionists. TV cartoons were used to normalise use of an experimental drug on children and within months official figures showed deaths of young girls increasing by 57 per cent.

Still, none of this got reported by the mainstream media.

Top lawyers came together and assembled a huge team of experts. Their plan was to take the Conspirators to a world court, accusing them of crimes against humanity. Just as happened in Nuremburg after our own World War II, the excuse “I was only obeying orders” would count for nothing.

This worried some of them and defections began to take place – Mengowchi for one. But was it too late? We don't know because this terrible story has yet to run its course and the ending lies in the hands of the people. Will enough of them wake up to the lies, deceit and tyranny and fight for their freedom?

Meanwhile, the drug companies are still doing everything possible to halt the use of Imacurin and Mypoxisfallin, cheap, safe and effective drugs that saved the lives of millions. They knew that, if people give up on the weaponised jabs, the evil plan would fail.

So, governments have been instructed to intensify the propaganda by warning of dangerous new variants while the Conspirators announced a more lethal virus called Funkytosh which many now believe is a handy name for the injuries suffered by jab victims.

Back here on planet Earth, Edmund Burke is believed to have said... “The only thing necessary for the triumph of evil is for good men to do nothing.” Wise words that must surely be heeded.

Finally, I bring you a recent message from our planetary neighbours:

“Our world has allowed crooked bankers, self-serving politicians, deluded tech entrepreneurs and evil drug companies to bring about worldwide genocide under the guise of a global pandemic. They’ve done it in order to cull the billions of so-called “Useless Creatures” and ruthlessly expand their already enormous power and wealth.

“Coppit poses little risk to most people, especially children and young adults. The real risk lies in the weaponised jabs supposedly created to control it.

“The pandemic is a long-planned cover story to facilitate the biggest transfer of wealth and power in our history, and the greatest ever erosion of personal freedoms and civil liberties.

“Public fear may be subsiding as people grow used to absurd restrictions and unprecedented levels of vaccine death and injury but it’s unlikely the Conspirators will be stopping here. They already have plans to deprive us of food and energy and before long there will be new and ever more intense attacks.

“May God help us in our hour of need.”

WHAT'S HAPPENING THERE COULD ALSO BE HAPPENING ON PLANET EARTH. SO WAKE UP, LOOK AROUND – AND THINK!
